AAW

As was mentioned in the March meeting, the AAW Annual Symposium is coming June 9-12. We have been charged with creating bowls for the Empty Bowls project and boxes for the Beads of Courage project. More about both at <http://www.woodturner.org/?page=2016Charitable>. I will be attending the symposium and am happy to take anything you wish to send, and assure that it gets to the proper hands and to your credit (for tax purposes as a contribution). Better yet, why don't you attend with me and take it yourself? Information and registration are at <http://www.woodturner.org/?page=2016Atlanta>.

Message from the President:

Everything you ever wanted to know about making and selling bowls, but did not know whom to ask. That pretty well sums up the March demonstration. An evening well invested for everyone.

There was plenty for the novice, good tips for the intermediate turners, and something for the more advanced folk. All in all, we should be grateful to Phil for pulling this off. Good Start!

Remember that Michael Thompson has someone coming this month with wood for sale. There promises to be some nice crotch wood and burls available.

President's Challenge

I hope you are putting your dibbles to good use from last month's President's Challenge.

Remember, this month is a collaborative project. We had a couple of fine examples on display in March, which should have gotten your creative juices flowing.

Next month will be covered up with graduations, so for the challenge, let's make pens for the graduates. Make and bring in your best pen to date.

Youth Turning

We have several volunteers for the youth turning project this summer, but can always use additional support. Now we just need someone to step up and take the lead. If you can see your way

I was in the shop the other day turning bocce balls and got to thinking that it might be nice to write up the process – sort of a demonstration at a distance. I had a glued up piece twenty inches long and just over four square, with the corners knocked off on the table saw. Simple enough. I turned the stock to four inches round, marked off four balls with an inch between them and cut a half-inch relief down to about an inch and a half between each pair. Then I took a spindle gouge and cut away the ends of each ball, giving me a twenty inch spindle with forty-five degree v-cuts, half inch wide at the bottom rising to the four inch flat; one every five inches with an inch and a half solid center full length. With as many of these as I turn, and the importance of getting them all precisely alike in sets of eight, I have invested in a sphere jig so getting them roughed to spheres went fairly quickly. Now I had what can be thought of as a set of four four-inch beads on an inch and a half cord. With a detail gouge I removed much of the left wood between the balls and sanded everything. Once I had sawed them apart I had four separate pieces, balls with a point on each end, sort of like a softball with a stick through it. Working between cup centers I turned away the “stick” leaving a sphere, or nearly enough to a sphere. All in all each ball takes about ten minutes to turn.

So here is a second President’s Challenge, one that is ongoing. Take your pen to hand and write up the process by which you make something you do regularly. Send it to me and I will see to it that it is shared with the club. This will accomplish several things. First it will cause you to think through the process by which you turn something and, just by thinking it through in a systematic manner you may find places that can be improved. Second, it will give other members food for thought and creation, sparking both imitation and new creation. Third, and this is the one about which I am most excited, it will give Phil a set of interesting activities from which he may choose to solicit a demonstration for the club.

President
